

The boy removed his shoes and placed his feet into the warm water.
He shut his eyes and imagined that the colors of the rainbow that filled the pond could also fill his body.

The turtle, curious about what the boy was doing,
also put his feet into the warm water
and shut his eyes.

The boy drew a breath of warm air in through his nose and felt all the stress of the day slip away.